ve heard it over and over! So people say, "I would like to my family history, but I am might find a horse thief!" ago the Joliet (Ill.) News put it this way: "Suppose you n ancestor who was a horse I he stole horses from the and gave them to the an revolutionaries, he might dered a patriot. For obtaining ship in the Daughters of the n Revolution, he could be a 'military supplier.'"

Everyday Life: Part II / [83]

In the 1760s Jacob Flood, who may have lived in or near Augusta, was rewarded for delivering three felons to jail.⁹⁵ Some criminals were taken by hue and cry or by variations of it. Richard White, Alice Riley's accomplice in murder, escaped from jail and was sighted by a group of workmen, one of whom cried, "Yonder Goes a man very fast." When the men pursued and overtook White, he fell on his knees "and with many Blows on his Breast baged his Life." Notwithstanding his pleas, he was "had immediately to the Gallows" and put to death. The men who caught him shared a reward of £50 currency.⁹⁶

By the 1770s many people were convinced that horse thieves should no longer be hanged. Although horse stealing was a capital offense in England upon first conviction, the colonists reasoned that horses were kept in enclosures there, whereas in Georgia they were often either wild or loosely held. It was difficult to know whether a suspect had thought he was picking up a stray. Jurors, prosecutors, and witnesses usually interpreted the evidence in favor of the accused, and persons suspected of being notorious offenders were sometimes set free without any punishment at all. Some Georgians believed that if the law commanded a lesser penalty than death—the whipping post, for example—juries would be more willing to convict.⁹⁷ Some also believed that if horse theft were not a capital crime in the first instance, a man stealing a horse would be less likely to murder its owner to cover his crime. ^①

The case of Joseph Prine, "a notorious Horse Stealer," brought the question to a head in 1773: Prine, who was confined in Savannah's jail, not surprisingly escaped. The jail was then in such a tumbledown condition that repairs were not even possible. The weight of a new floor would have brought down the prison. Prine was rearrested in South Carolina in February 1773 and returned to Savannah. There members of the council, the lower house, and the public undertook to save him by changing the law that provided death for first conviction. In the assembly a movement arose to rewrite the "Act to Prevent Stealing of Horses and Neat Cattle" with the intent to abolish the death penalty for first offenders. Such a change, however, would not have affected Prine; he had been sentenced under the old act. A group of gentlemen protested that if Prine were hanged, "he is snatched away at the dawn of mercy, he is wrecked within sight of the harbour."

... That he dies not for having Stolen a Mare, but for having Stolen in 1772 instead of 1773." Two days before Prine was to die, the lower house asked the governor to extend mercy. The Commons House, in an unusual move, even recorded the votes of its members, who recommended clemency by a margin of eleven to ten.⁹⁸ The council unanimously advised the governor to pardon Prine on condition that he leave the province immediately and never return, upon penalty of death.⁹⁹ The date was July 21, the day before Prine was to be hanged, and it is almost certain that he was spared. Two months later Governor Wright assented to a new law abolishing the death penalty upon first conviction and substituting corporal punishment in its place. To sign it, the governor had had to overcome personal reservations founded in his concern that the new act was contrary to the laws of England.¹⁰⁰

For noncapital crimes, the stocks, the whipping post, the branding iron, the ducking stool, and the jail were Georgia's instruments of correction as they were elsewhere in the eighteenth century. Men stood in the stocks for drunkenness or for perjury; women were condemned to stand at the whipping post for stealing fowls. Servants were whipped for running away and for theft, and vagrants were often sentenced to ninety days in jail. Men guilty of manslaughter might be burned in the hand with the letter "M."¹⁰¹

The courts sometimes assigned a variety of penalties for the same offense. A single session of the Court of Oyer and Terminer and General Gaol Delivery in 1770 imposed different punishments on three persons convicted of the same crime—larceny. All three were modest persons, not hitherto conspicuous in the colony. John Ward was burned in the hand with the letter "R." Ann Galloway was sentenced to be privately whipped, and Thomas Johnston to be publicly whipped.¹⁰² A person might be imprisoned for forgery, riot, debt, and a variety of other causes, including being loose, idle, or disorderly. In some cases a convicted person might appeal a verdict to England, but

Dear Francis;

Received your most welcomed letter of March 4th and it was very thrilling to learn, that you had sent me another piece of vital information, to help in my quest, to find my roots, after you had got me interested in, who was I, back in 1980, with you writing your letter to me, in regards to the Prine's, in your search for your husbands root .

I can say one thing for you, that I have learned, that you possess a very surging drive and a very strong determination to get things done and don't give up easily. It appears, that you are like the Old Mississippi River, you just keep rolling along, in your searching for your information and helping other, along the way, who are also searching for information on their roots also.

I am sorry to hear, that you have been sick and that your get up and go, is not cooperating properly with your will power, in order to get the things accomplished, that you love to work on. So hang in there and don't let your stress, get the best of you, if possible, so you will be able to reach your goal in locating old John. So hang in there gal, we might get to be kissing cousin yet. Which, I would be mighty proud to claim.

Francis, - believe, our main key to unravel this, is centered around this Salkehatchee Road in Colleton County and Joseph Prine, who I believe is our kin folks. You will notice, this write up on his Jail break (enclosed), April 13th, 1772 with a John My Dukes, stated that Joseph had probably gone to Saltketchers in South Carolina, where he has many relations.

Now this deed, that was issued to Mr. Greater Grandfather, Daniel Sr. is the same district and bordered by the dear Francis and the Salkehatchee Road, on the property that was bought November 15th, 1815. As Daniel Sr. was born in 1802, he would have been 15 years old and Robert, who was born in Sept. 2nd, 1805, he would have been 10 years of age. Now Daniel Sr. was listed in the first census, so he would have had to be, at least 16 year old, to have been enumerated in 1790. At this time he would have been in the Charleston District, which was divided in 1800 and Colleton District was added into it, which then put Daniel Sr. in the Colleton District.

Now this other Robert Prine, that also broke jail in 1770, that they stated was app. 35 years, his DOB would have been about 1735. It is possible that Daniel Sr. and this Robert could have been brothers. Now what we need is a good fashion miracle like finding the papers that got lost on Daniels Sr. but I am thankful for what I have got as it puts me back there working with old Daniel Sr.

Dear Mr. Strickland.

Thank you for taking time to discuss some of our Prine Genealogy with me. I am inclosing two money orders for a copy of the two books on Jones Co, Miss early Records - & Tax & Census Records. I am a native of Jones Co, Miss. My G. Great Grand Parents were William & Harriett Prine my Great Grand Parents were Arthur and Mary Johnson. Prine. My Grand Parents were William Wesley & Emaline Goodman Prine. My Parents are James D. and Ellen Olenia Prine. Hicks. My mother died when I was a small child even tho I grew up around my Grand mother Prine I dont know any thing about my Prine lineage. only a little I remember about Grand Daddy Prine. His hobby was fishing. & he was a Farmer by trade. He also died when I am a child. John Wesley and Kellison Dale Prine. on Laurel Rt #8 Jones Co, Miss. are his only living son's I am in the process of putting a family

Chart to gather for you now. hope to get it in mail in a few days. I have learned from the Lauren Rogers
Library in Laurel Miss, that the Jones
Co. Miss Court House fire was in 1886. I know May Pitts you said you visited near Ovette Miss. he is close friends to all my kin folk around Laurel & Ovette, I wish he would let that book be seen. I feel some of my relatives names are listed thir that I can't locate any Data on. because not married & old Tucker Cem at Ellisville Junction are where all of my ancestors & present family are buried that I can locate.
The Strickland that I told you about from Wayne County Miss is Lodie & Zelline Cullpepper. Strickland They are living near John Prine. on Laurel Rt 8. out from Tuckers Crossing. do you know of any Prine that was ever married to a Montgomery? will close & try to get more data prepared for you

George County native receives Bronze Star award

Special to The Mississippi Press

VICKSBURG — Daniel Prine, originally from George County and now a resident of Fairhope, Ala., was recently awarded the Bronze Star for valor.

He served as the commander of the 412th Engineer Command Detachment 8 attached to the 130th Engineer Brigade from Haueu, Germany, performing operations in Balad, Iraq.

The 412th Engineer Command is headquartered in Vicksburg. Prine supervised all U.S. Army and Air Force Field Engineering Teams in Iraq. His detachment also supported construction of detainee facilities with the Multinational Corps during the transfer of detainees from the Abu Graif prison.

The Bronze Star Medal is awarded to a soldier who distinguished himself or herself by heroic or meritorious achievement or service in connection with military operations against an armed enemy; or while engaged in military operations involving conflict with an opposing armed force.

Prine and his wife, the former Rita Brown, have three children, Jeremy, Kristin and Jaime. He is the son of J.D. and Mary Francis Prine of Lucedale. Prine is a 1973 graduate of the George County High School and of the University of South Alabama.

Col. Daniel Prine, left, is awarded the Bronze Star for valor while on duty in Iraq. Presenting him the award is Brigadier Gen. Paul Hamm, deputy commander of the 412th Engineer Command in Vicksburg.

Prine

ONE OF OLD TURPENTINE STILLS - This turpentine still was owned by the late J. C. Prine, Sr., of Citronelle in the early 1900's. It was located on Prine Road, west of Citronelle. The towering pine trees in the area provided several avenues of industry. First, the trees were tapped in the Spring for the collection of sap, called resin. It was then hauled in barrels to a distillery where it was cooked. The process very closely resembled the whiskey still, of which Citronelle had its share. The sap became rosin or spirits of turpentine. An old whiskey still, in working order, will be on display at the Centennial Celebration May 25 and 26. Come and enjoy the special work presentations, buy a shirt, book or other souvenir at this memorable 100th birthday Celebration. There's only two weeks left.
